Our 2011 season was filled with old friends and new ones. One thing that was not new, was the great times and memories we have as a result.

The season began with the amazing opportunity of getting to know a remarkable family from Colorado. We received a phone call the middle of May from a foundation called Joseph's Journey. The organization sends young people with serious illnesses on hunting, fishing and camping trips. They had a young man who wanted to go bear hunting and they were interested in our camp. We told him we would love to assist them in making his dream come true. Tedd and Christy picked up Zach and his mother, Kelly, at the airport. We knew before we got home that this was a special family. We started hunting on June 2nd. We had some bears hitting our bait consistently in the afternoon, so we went up to the bait early so we could be in a good position. The weather was cold and we sat through some snow flurries. Zach was recovering from pneumonia when he arrived. He was shivering and Kelly was ready to go back to the warm room, but Zach refused. Zach's patience paid off, when a bear came in to the bait. Zach made one shot to kill his beautiful brown color phase bear. I don't know who was more excited to kill that bear! We will never forget these extraordinary people. They are wonderful additions to our many clients that leave some of our dearest friends.

Fall got off to a great start with archery elk season. The weather was not ideal, but we still had successful hunts. Earl Prichard took a nice 5X5 on the second day of his hunt. In addition, Chris Lee took his first big game animal with his bow. Congratulations, Chris, you will never forget that hunt!

The deer hunting in western Wyoming will rival any mule deer hunting in the world. This year was no exception. The opening week we had the Quicksells in camp again this year, with both Jeff and Chad filling their tags with nice bucks to take back to Indiana to fill their freezers.

Antelope season was another great success as we were able to hunt with our good friends Jim Burnworth and Ray Bunney. They were able to take some nice bucks with Jenkins Hunting Camp. They filmed an episode for the Outdoor Channel. Watch for our latest show to air on their new show 'Choose Your Weapon'. It's always a great adventure with them in our camp, you never know what will happen next.

September brought a slow start to the elk season, but it quickly picked up in October providing for some of the best elk hunting in the west. Chris Peterson made the most of his first time in camp, by taking a beautiful bull back home to New York. We have been fortunate to have our elk numbers the best they have ever been. We haven't had problems with wolves or bears which has helped these numbers.

2011 brought a new addition to the crew of Jenkins Hunting Camp. Paxton Wolfley, although new to Jenkins Hunting Camp, he is not new to guiding. He has spent the last 16 years guiding in the Yellowstone country. We quickly discovered that Paxton was a tremendous asset to our crew. Along with Tedd, Brian and, of course, Larry, our crew of guides are second to none. You also need not worry about losing weight with Maurie and Shirley in charge of the food!

We can hardly believe it is 2012! We are already planning and preparing for the next hunting season. It is never too early to start thinking about our upcoming hunting season. You can start applying for licenses now. The deadline for elk is JANUARY 31st so it is approaching fast. The deadline for moose and sheep is February 29th. Deer and antelope is March 15th. If you are in Sacramento, we will be at the CAL Expo on January 19-22. We will also be in Las Vegas at the RMEF on February 2-4.

Please give us a call and so we can start planning for new memories together. We hope you all had a Merry Christmas and wish you all a Happy New Year.
